Local Guide Program Benefits - Google RewardsAs a Local Guide, you earn points for sharing reviews, photos, and knowledge on Google Maps. Those points lead to higher levels of the program, as well as benefits like early access to Google features and special perks from partners. Local Guides are not paid nor may Local Guides earn money for their contributions, per our program rules. The Local Guides program is for individuals who contribute to Google Maps who like to help others to discover and explore their world. But they can earn other benefits like: Early access to new Google products. Local Guides is a global community of explorers who write reviews, share photos, answer questions, add or edit places, and check facts on Google Maps. Millions of people rely on contributions like yours to decide where to go and what to do. As a Local Guide, you earn points for sharing reviews, photos, and knowledge on Google Maps. Those points lead to higher levels of the program, as well as benefits like early access to Google features and special perks from partners. Becoming a Google Local Guide is really easy! Just go to the Google Local Guide website and Join. If you have an existing Google account, then you can link it to that, otherwise, just sign up and you're on your way. Then all you need to do is leave reviews and ratings and upload images of places you've been. Bestseller No. 1. This promotion will expire after the deadline.Level 5: 500+ pointsEligible for trusted testing opportunities - Access Google products and features before they go publicApply to attend our Level 5 Local Guides SummitQuick Facts About the Spider CricketHow A Google Local Guide Contribute to ListingsEach action of a Local Guide in a list is rewarded with a specific amount of points.This includes things like verifying information (1 point per fact), adding a new business (15 points), uploading a video (7 points), or leaving a review (10 points or 20 points for each review with more than 200 characters).The number of points a user accumulates determines their Local Guide level, and there are 10 levels.At level 4 (250 cumulative points), the user will have a Local Guides badge next to their name on Maps.Google also offers rewards and perks for those who move up the rankings. Details are unclear, but Google says it offers "early access to Google features and special partner benefits." Many people also seem to ask if a Google Local Guide is paid for their services.As far as we know, the program is voluntary and the rewards listed above are the only things Local Guides can get from Google.what is a coverletHow To Get A Google Local Guide to Your BusinessIn most cases, it is difficult to identify local guides in person, unless they wear local guide-branded clothing or if you recognize their face from their many online presentations.The only way to get the maximum recognition from a local guide is to treat all of your clients equally.It starts with a Google My Business listing that's packed with great-looking photos and videos, as well as the right information and a solid local SEO strategy.To help increase online visibility, you also need to be proactive and learn how to request reviews, as well as learn how to respond to negative reviews.Local Guide Program Benefits - Google Rewards 2022Having a dedicated plan for generating reviews and comments doesn't just help you save face. This may be the best way for future customers to gain valuable information to help improve the customer experience (which can be Google Local Guide).Appliance InsuranceHow do you score points on Google Maps?The easiest way to earn points is to rate places. This is the simple star rating that you select and submit.If you want to put a bit more effort into it, you can leave a written review. Tell people about the place you've visited with a much or as little detail as you like. Be descriptive and share what's good or bad, what does it look like and what is the vibe like. Anything that you think might be useful to future visitors.Reviews also help business owners refine their service with the feedback they receive. If you're going to be critical, make sure your concerns are legitimate and written in a reasonable manner if possible, let's all try to be kind people!A higher earner in Local Guide points is the photograph. Upload as many as you like, they help people get a feel of what the place looks like and what they might experience. Let's face it, if you go somewhere with your phone you're probably taking pics while you're there so share!You can also add a venue or place. Some businesses don't have a Google My Business page setup or claimed so you can help them out and put them on the map. There's also something very satisfying about being the first to add a place to Maps.Along the same lines as this is editing existing information that's out of date or no longer relevant. So if you look up a business and it says it's open today and you get there are it's actually closed, that sucks for everyone involved. In this case, you can suggest an edit for opening times, the category of the establishment or contact details for example.As you get a bit higher up the levels, you will be asked questions about places you've visited and reviewed. These questions earn you points and are useful for future visitors. A few good examples of this might be something like does a restaurant serve only vegetarian food or is a place suitable for children.And you can check facts about businesses. Like is that business still located at that address? If it's not, you can say it's permanently closed. By the same token, you can say that a business isn't permanently closed even if some unscrupulous competitor says it is!Google Local Guide points are your stepping stone up the levels, from one (the starting level from zero points) to level ten (100,000 points +). When you get to Level 4, you get a neat little badge that accompanies your reviews.How do I unlock Google Local Guide points and badges?As mentioned, Google Local Guides has a strong gamification aspect with each Guide rewarded for their contributions with points and badges.Those points and badges can be traded for rewards with Google partners. You'll need to make contributions to Maps to begin earning points, and then increase your activity to earn badges.Contributions:Score a local business by giving it a ratingReview a local businessShare photosUpload videoAnswer a question about a place you have visited on MapsAsk a question and/or provide an answer on the information panel in the local searchEdit informationAdd a missing placeCheck factsThe Power of a Google Local GuideLevel 5: 500 points with a new badge. Level 6: 1,500 points with a new badge. Level 7: 5,000 points with a new badge. Level 8: 15,000 points with a new badge. Level 9: 50,000 points with a new badge.Having a Google Local Guides that answers a question, leaves a review, or posts a picture for your listing on Maps can have a positive impact on your brand.It shows that one of Google's many highly reliable sources took the time to give your business a go, which can make it easier for future consumers to make a purchasing decision.However, it depends on the fact that your brand meets the virtual and physical expectations you set. Providing the right information online, along with a world-class experience anywhere, makes a local guide happy, which means more customers and the opportunity to further improve the customer experience.What does chronological order mean?ConclusionGoogle Local Guides presents an important duty for Google Maps: offering reviews, editing incorrect information, adding missing locations, and sharing images and videos.This information is useful to local consumers and the simplification of the system makes it a fun way for engaged search users to interact with Google products.That said, there is no SEO reward for signing up for the Google Local Guides program, so you shouldn't be part of any local search strategy or rely on perks like preferential editing or higher rankings.A Google Local Guide is anyone in the world who wants to contribute to the continued improvement of Google Maps and the information Maps gives its users.It gives those that want to share their local knowledge and experiences an outlet to publish this information and become a Google Local Guide.It is a platform where you can share and publish your local knowledge and experiences to Google users looking for more information about a store or business.Google launched the Local Guide program to enrich the quality of information available on Google Maps so people looking up places on Maps could get more key information about places. So if you think you want to contribute to Maps and get some perks along the way, being a Google Local Guide could be for you.Becoming a Google Local Guide is really easy! Just go to the Google Local Guide website and join. If you have an existing Google account, then you can link it to that, otherwise, just sign up and you're on your way. Then all you need to do is leave reviews and ratings and upload images of places you've been.Local GuideLocal Guide Program Benefits - Google Rewards 2022Last update on 2022-06-26 / Affiliate links / Images from Amazon Product Advertising API
